Item No. 4  Report on the Academic Activities

Prof Suman Mitra, Dean (AP), referred to the report on academic activities 2015-16 that he has circulated among members. He summarized on the number of courses offered which included the compulsory Technical Writing course for M. Tech students, the new course titled ‘Topics in Neural Networks’ offered with faculty from Nayang Technological University, Singapore, external faculty members invited, and the feedback received from the students on the courses. He stated that the overall analysis of the feedback shows that the student community is satisfied with the courses offered. It was brought to the notice of the members that, as the practice has been to take an offline course feedback, a Committee is constituted to examine the possibility of implementing an online feedback system.

Prof Mitra briefed that the academic activities plan 2016-17 includes invitation to 8 external faculty members to offer management related courses and courses in focus area for MDes and MSc (ICT-ARD) Programs and the decision to repeat the ‘Topics in Neural Networks’ course during the winter break.

The meeting examined the large number of elective courses offered and opined that the Institute may either strengthen elective courses or consider training B. Tech students for selected ‘certification’ programs after second year of their studies as the certification programs have become a ‘brand’ requirement for placement. Prof Srivastava opined that before we decide on the proposal, we should collect data on impact and necessity of certification programs and assess the ‘brand value’ of them before planning to offer them. It was clarified that ‘certification programs’ are considered as one of the positive inputs for NAAC and NBA assessments.

It was stated that the course ‘Neural Networks’ conducted in ten days has three credits. The members felt that a ten days course is not worth for 3 credits. Prof Suman Mitra clarified that this initiative offering new and special courses where we do not have the faculty is on an experimental basis. A detailed proposal to offer the course twice in an academic year with accepted credit structure will be placed before the ensuing meeting of the academic council for a final decision.

The IQAC noted that Ms. Lavanya Gupta, B.Tech 2012 batch student will receive the TCS 100 best student award 2016 for her holistic achievement as a B. Tech student.
